Local law officers oppose state's "gunslinger" bill

BY TRACI BONNEY

Local law enforcement officials are not thrilled with the passing of the "gunslinger" bill.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said he is against the bill, which was recently passed by the state legislature.

"I am not strictly against a gun permit, but I am strictly against this law as it is written.

"It allows just about anyone to strap a gun to their hip and walk around the streets that way."

According to state Senator Vic Frankiewicz, the bill allows anyone who is not a convicted felon or deemed insane, habitually drunk or a drug addict, to apply for and receive a permit to carry a concealed weapon.

Frankiewicz recently called the bill a bad one that never should have been passed, and said he thinks the incidents of violence are very likely to increase, with simple barroom brawls turning into shootouts and traffic stops meaning death or injury to law officers.

Peterson said, "I feel, as a law enforcement officer, that we're going to have more problems the way this thing stands."

He added that he hopes the county won't start to look like a scene from an old western movie before the legislature has a chance to amend the bill during the regular session, which starts in January.

Bay St. Louis Police Chief Robert Lee concurred with Peterson's comments.

Lee said, "It's probably going to end up like in Florida, where they passed a law like this and then had to go back and change it."

"We're going to have a lot of people carrying guns, and we'll have a lot of jittery people."

Hancock school board adopts residency verification policy

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock County School Board voted at its Monday meeting to accept a residency verification policy for students.

The policy, being adopted by the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District and other school districts throughout the state, requires students to register at the school they attend, and to furnish two documents proving they live in the district.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph said the policy would mean more paperwork for the schools to deal with, but the policy must be adopted, since it is state-mandated.

Other matters addressed at the board meeting included:

—accepting the resignations of Kim Stasny, Kate Reynolds, Gary Daniels, Debbie Triplett, Janet Butler, Kathy Davis and Carol Green;

—approving recommendations to employ Cecil Powell, Brenda Bradley, Patrick Saucier, Elisabeth Magee, Genette Butsch, Gloria Garcia and Sheryl Colson;

—approving recommendations to transfer from Gulfview Elementary to Hancock High School Fred Bilbo, Lavern Halferty, Brenda Scianna and Frances Weiler; —approving recommendations to transfer special education teacher Carolyn Priest to Hancock High School, Thaddeus Williams to Charles B. Murphy Elementary, and Patricia Williams as assistant teacher from Charles B. Murphy to Gulfview; —approving payments of several bills;

—approving advertisement for bids for maintenance on office and copier machines, Chapter I equipment for the Write to Read program and school food equipment;

—approving hand checks and the claims docket;

—and approving several 16th Section leases.

No benchmark here

Bay St. Louis Public Works foreman Buddy Zimmerman and city employees Sam Dorsey and Charlie Gillum unsuccessfully attempt to locate a benchmark on Seube Street as city attorney John Scaife consults with surveyor Lucien Raymond in the background. The location of the benchmark, a reference used in topographical surveys, has been the center of controversy concerning property boundaries of several commercial properties on Longfellow Road. The actual benchmark was found approximately 17 feet closer to Washington Street. The matter will be addressed before the city council before any action is taken. (Echo staff photo by Janet McQueen)

Board considers removal of Harbor Drive dumpsters

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Harbor Drive dumpsters' controversy made its way to the Board of Supervisors meeting Monday when K. W. Achee presented a petition with 44 signatures asking for the removal of the garbage receptacles.

The dumpsters have fostered a continuing dispute among residents in the Harbor Drive vicinity. There have been problems with rats, since litter has been thrown about carelessly.

Residents have voiced their concern through letters to the editor and other means.

District Four supervisor Wilmer "Coach" Seymour told Achee, "If the people don't want the dumpsters, we can have them removed."

Seymour added he had the dumpsters installed at the request of the residents in the Harbor Drive vicinity.

Achee said many of those who were originally in favor of the dumpsters have changed their minds and were among those who signed the petition.

In addition to accepting the petition, the board:

—accepted the motor vehicle assessment schedule given by Tax Assessor Eddie Murtagh;

—authorized Road Superintendent Sam Cuevas to hire three part-time road workers;

—accepted the resignation of Byron Ruffin from the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District;

—approved several 16th Section leases for the Hancock County School District;

—voted to hold a special election to fill the unexpired term of the county medical examiner;

—voted to advertise for four mills for the county's four fire protection districts;

—and approved the claims docket for June.

Locked out?

County, Bay offer free assistance

BY LIZ HAAS

Imagine you have just dashed off to the grocery store to pick up a needed item; you whip into a parking place and lock the car—with the keys in the ignition.

Whom do you call for assistance?

The Waveland Police Department no longer assists community members who have locked themselves out of their vehicles.

Police Chief Donald Dorn said the department was receiving too many complaints from people wanting them to pay them for damages incurred to their cars during the assistance—such as scratches on windows.

He said, "We're not going to do someone a favor and have to turn around and pay him for it."

They'll just have to call a locksmith and be charged for the assistance."

Robert Lee, Bay St. Louis Chief of Police said, "We do not plan to discontinue helping people who are locked out of their cars, but we only have two or three slim jims (tools) to assist."

Hancock County Sheriff Ronnie Peterson said the Sheriff's Department does not plan to discontinue providing the community with such services.

The department recently purchased five new openers and is trying to get one for each officer and each car, according to Peterson.

If free assistance is not available, Lonnie's Locksmith Shop on Highway 90 charges from $18 to $35, according to the type of car, to provide assistance.

ON PATROL

POSSESSION OF CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE

James Varnell of the Hancock County Narcotics Task Force reported the Saturday, June 30, arrest of Tommie Kay Yeldell Evans, 21, of Gulf Grove Apts. #165, Waveland.

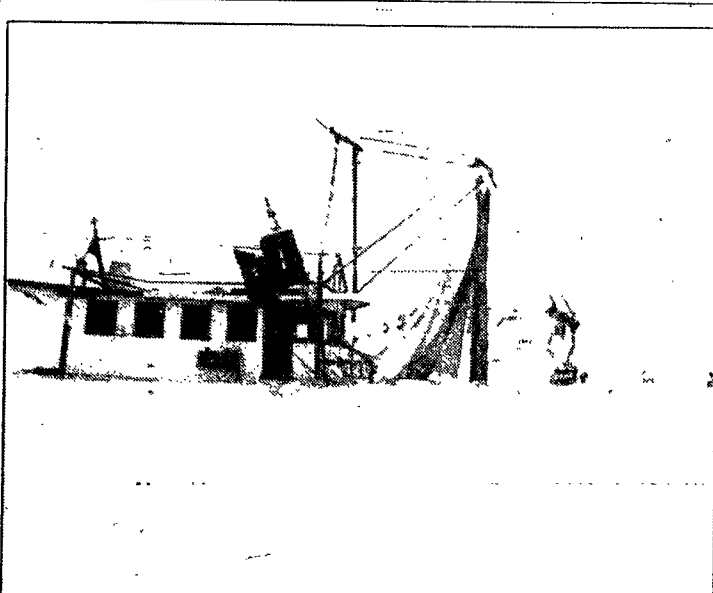

At approximately 10:20 p.m., Patrolman Kent Malley and Officer Renee Normand of Waveland Police Department stopped Evans for reckless driving. At that time a marijuana pipe was seen in her purse, Varnell said.

The officers called the task force, and a search of the vehicle revealed a small amount of prescription drugs (Valium and Zanax), but no prescriptions.

Evans was charged with possession of a controlled substance, reckless driving and driving on a suspended license.

She is out on bond, Varnell said. A hearing has been set for July 12 in city court on the misdemeanor charges, and one is set for July 10 on the charge of possession of a controlled substance.

New shrimping method?

Normally one would use a net to shrimp, but someone seems to have tried unsuccessfully to use the entire boat. This shrimp boat, owner unknown at press time, was seen in a half-sunken condition off the American Legion pier at Washington Ave. (Echo staff photo by Traci Bonney)

Daytime contributions requested by Goodwill

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Residents are asked to extend a little more 'good will' regarding the donation collection site behind the Bay St. Louis Goodwill Industries Retail Store.

According to Goodwill Industries of South Mississippi executive director, LeRoy Modenbach Jr., a recurring problem of theft of items dropped off after hours is continuing.

"We would like to ask, if it is at all possible, that persons take items to the store during operating hours. This enables us to present them with receipts and allows us to secure the items inside the building," Modenbach said.

enbach said.

"Although we are continuing to improve security, there is no way we can stop the problem of persons picking up items left unattended after dark."

"When things are left outside, they rarely make it through the night," he said.

Some retail store locations offer attended collection sites, but the Bay St. Louis store is not large enough, according to Modenbach.

The local store is extending its operating hours beginning this week. New hours will be 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. weekdays and Saturday. For additional information, phone 467-7277.

Gambino couple ready to assist disaster victims

A Waveland couple is one of 13 married couples working in Ohio for Red Cross Services Centers.

All of the couples are committed to helping survivors of the tragic Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia floods that left more than 1,400 families homeless. They are among 106 Red Cross workers from outside the area aiding the flood victims.

Red Cross volunteers Joseph and Jessica Gambino are members of the Red Cross Territory when not serving on national disasters.

Because they are self-employed, the Gambinos are able to take off just about any time they get a call from the Red Cross to report to some disaster-stricken area.

Most recently they spent five weeks in Elba, Ala. where a levee had burst and water rose as high as people's rooftops. There they were part of the additional assistance team.

"We had about a three-week break after Elba, when the call came in for us to go to Shadyside, Ohio where 24 people drowned at Pike and Wegee creeks," Gambino said.

Earlier this year the couple had spent two weeks helping victims of the Mississippi floods.

Last fall the husband-wife team spent two months at Sumter, S.C. as members of the Red Cross Hurricane Hugo relief effort and were assigned to family service.

Since arriving in West Virginia, the Gambinos have been putting in 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. workdays. Although they spend most of their day in a Red Cross service center interviewing clients to determine their losses and needs, the Gambinos have also been going into the flood zone to make home visits to their clients.

Hancock County, Mississippi, is considering applying to the Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, Department of Community Development, for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant of up to $750,000. The State of Mississippi has been allocated approximately $27 million that will be made available to cities and counties on a competitive basis to undertake eligible community development activities. These funds must be used for one of the following purposes:

1. To benefit low and moderate income persons;
2. To aid in the prevention or elimination of slums or blight; or

The activities for which these funds may be used are in the areas of housing, public facilities, and economic development. More specific details regarding eligible activities, program requirements, and the rating system will be provided at a public hearing which will be held at the Hancock County Courthouse on July 10, 1990 at 10:00 a.m. The purpose of this hearing will be to obtain citizen input into the development of the application.

A thought for meditation from our pastor Father Justin Furman, ST.

Charity is a great virtue because it is the great virtue of love. "This is My commandment, that you love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love than this no man has, that a man lay down his life for his friends." (John 15:12-13)

These are the words of our Blessed Savior. We thank God for this and pray most earnestly that it may never die... for without it we would be useless in apostolic labor.

KILLING TIME

By Traci Bonney

Why July 4th is special to me

What does July 4th mean to you?

Is it fireworks, picnics, bonfires on the beach?

Is it a historical occasion, a chance to fly the flag, a day of importance, or just another reason to take a day off from work?

Well, it's some of those things to me, but it's something more. It's my dad's birthday.

My grandmother jokes that it may have been Independence Day for the nation, but it wasn't for her when Dad, the oldest of five, was born.

I've always enjoyed celebrating July 4th for both its historical significance and its importance in our family. Think about it—how many people get fireworks for their birthday?

I think my favorite July 4th was one when we lived in north Mississippi and came to the Coast to visit Grandma Bonney (now Grandma Cantrell). I was pretty young then, but I still remember watching Dad shoot bottle rockets in Grandma's yard.

Grandma warned Dad to be careful with those things, and he said he was.

Well, evidently he wasn't quite careful enough. A bottle rocket shot into a neighbor's yard and landed in a bush. Grandma ran over to the small fire that started and stomped it out, ruining a good pair of house shoes.

It was so funny to see someone scold my father.

Since then, we've had a lot of July 4th celebrations. The recent ones have been especially good.

Usually, some branch of our family comes down to visit from the northern part of the state or from Louisiana. It's one of the few times in a year we have boiled shrimp, something I acquired a taste for about four years ago.

Most of you probably don't think of boiled shrimp as anything special, but around our house it's reserved for visiting family members and their friends. So when one of my two brothers, or a cousin or aunt, shows up, we have boiled shrimp.

I guess you could say that boiled shrimp is becoming our traditional July 4th fare, sort of like Thanksgiving and Christmas turkey, or ham at New Year's.

Other activities generally include a birthday cake for Dad, a trip to the beach or a swim at the Timber Ridge pool. We've come to avoid the fireworks shows that light up the Coast that night, simply because the crowds and traffic are usually too congested for us.

I think Dad looks forward to his birthdays with a mixture of delight and dread at the thought of growing older. I, on the other hand, am glad to see another July 4th roll around. It means I've had my dad around for another year.

So, happy birthday, Dad!

Happy July 4th, everybody!

Booksellers' convention is adventure for bookstore owner

BY TRACI BONNEY

For Susan Daigre of Bookends Bookstore, a recent trip to Las Vegas turned out to be "one adventure after another."

Daigre, along with Ocean Springs bookstore owner Terry Wyser, went to Las Vegas to attend the Basic Professional Booksellers School, a group of seminars and workshops sponsored by the American Booksellers Association. The school covers all aspects of bookstore operations, from customer service to current issues in book-selling and more.

Daigre and Wyser planned to stay for the seminars and one day of the three-day booksellers convention that was being held. Their plans were to look for bargains, find authors for book signings and get promotional ideas.

"They ended up staying the entire three days and becoming the subjects of a full-page feature story in the Las Vegas SUN."

Daigre said the two women started talking to SUN reporter David Stratton, telling him about Mississippi, their stores and their observations on the convention. Stratton decided to write a feature about them, telling the story from the point of view of first-time convention-goers.

Daigre said Stratton wanted to get some photos of them for his story, and told them he would bring the photographer back the next day.

Meanwhile, Daigre and Wyser "got greedy" at the 24,650-member convention and took several buttons, posters and book catalogs from the large variety of free promotional items. Realizing how much they had loaded themselves down, the two women sat in the middle of their loot and tried to figure out how to get it all back to the hotel.

Just as Daigre burst into laughter about the absurdity of the situation, a photographer snapped a picture of the women. He turned out to be the SUN photographer Stratton was planning to bring the next day.

Daigre said the man, Neal C. Lauron, didn't know that Stratton was writing a feature. Lauron was simply taking pictures for the paper.

"It was so wild that these two men individually picked us out of 24,650 people, without talking to each other at all," she exclaimed.

Lauron's appearance was more than coincidental, Daigre added; it was something of a godsend. When the two women prevailed upon him to help them transport their finds, he accommodated them by lugging the crammed bags to his car and driving the women to their hotel.

Daigre said she and Wyser enjoyed the seminars and convention.

"It was like 'Mississippi hits Las Vegas and it'll never be the same.'" as on all disasters, people have lost treasures that we can't replace. These items have sentimental value and were one of a kind."

Asked if he had seen any of the national media representatives who had descended onto Shadyside hours after the Wegee and Pike creeks had overflowed and became raging rivers, Gambino said that the

them to purchase at no cost items such as household furnishings, food, new clothing, occupational tools and linens.

At the peak of the disaster, nine Red Cross shelters were open, 635 people were sheltered, and 12 emergency response vehicles were on site.

More than 44,400 meals were served to disaster victims and workers.

There were 121 local volunteers and paid staff assisting the 106 from outside the area, the farthest from San Francisco and Puerto Rico.

Four of the five Red Cross Service Centers are still in operation, and more than 1,700 clean-up kits were distributed.

Jessica and Joseph Gambino media was not allowed in the Red Cross Service Center for confidentiality reasons. "We never violate the trust we build with our clients," he said.

When asked to recall a specific case that he'll remember always, Gambino mentioned the case of an elderly man who lived in a trailer.

After the wall of water, estimated at 40 feet high, swept his trailer into the surging water, he put his feet down to the trailer floor and found out there was no floor. His feet were inches deep in water, and his trailer was bouncing along "down river."

Eventually rescuers chased down the free-floating trailer after it got hung up in some trees. The rescuers punched a hole through the roof of the trailer and hauled the man to safety.

The Gambinos are helping families here by authorizing

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

St. Rose de Lima Catholic Church parishioners will celebrate the church's Family Homecoming this weekend during their annual fair.

Andy Smith and Wesley Labat are general chairmen of the annual fund-raising event for the church. Members of the parish have been planning for the fair for days for quiet a few weeks and are hoping to make this year's event the largest ever.

There will be many attractions at the fair this year. The most popular one will be the t-shirt booth.

Along with the regular fair items will be a dunking tank, a wheel, space walk for the kids, and an auction of all types of items.

The booths will include, to mention a few items, barbeque, fried chicken, hamburgers, hot dogs, fried boys and fried fish dinners. Let us not forget the desserts, cakes and many types of homemade and handmade items, plush animals, wood-burned ceramics will be offered.

There will be both a softball and tennis tournament starting at noon Saturday and Sunday. There will be prizes for participants in the tournaments, and trophies will also be awarded to some.

There will be a photo booth for photos while you wait for entertainment by local bands.

Kenneth Hamilton, St. Rose's new pastor, is welcome.

The church is located on Necaise Avenue two blocks from Main Street in Bay St. Louis.

REPORT FROM THE SENATE

by Sen. Vic Franckiewicz Jr.

Politics topples BEST; education steps backwards

Politics won, and Mississippi's school children lost in the recent fiasco more formally known as the First Extraordinary Session of the 1990 Mississippi Legislature.

Governor Mabus called the special session primarily to fund the BEST program. BEST is landmark legislation; it is the nation's most far-reaching restructuring of public education.

For a change, Mississippi had the chance to be first in something, but we rejected the opportunity when we failed to fund the program's $45 million first year cost.

Without funding, the BEST program remains in limbo. Its law will stay on the books, but it will not take effect until funding is provided. This was one of the few bright spots in an otherwise dismal session.

Until the last minutes of the session, everyone assumed that BEST would "self-destruct" without funding, requiring us to start from scratch and recreate the entire program in the next session. Because BEST did not repeal itself, all we have to do is fund it and give it a new effective date in the 1991 session.

I would prefer to do the job now, but most legislators are opposed to another special session. Furthermore, school districts are already in a new fiscal year, and are completing plans for the opening of school in two months. There isn't enough time to implement the program for this school year.

Another notable failure of this session was the gunslinger bill, a reference to legislation passed during the regular session which lets almost anyone carry a concealed weapon anywhere. It was bad judgement to pass this bill in the first place; we thought we were just correcting some problems with the existing concealed weapons law; in reality, we opened the flood gates to carrying concealed weapons in public. Corrective legislation died when the House of Representatives adjourned. We will probably revisit the subject next January, but I fear that innocent people will be killed before we take action.

Even though most of the session was a failure, a few things were done. We did pass gaming commission legislation to regulate the gambling industry. At the same time, we legalized dockside gambling on the Coast.

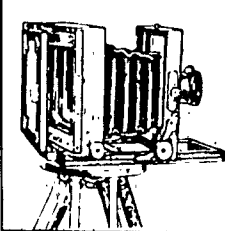

While the dockside gambling can make an economic contribution to the Coast, I am concerned that we approved too much too fast; we do not have good controls on the quality of the dockside casinos, and we did not address the crime problem which will come as a side effect.

These problems will end up falling to local governments which may not have the resources to handle them.

Both houses approved a performance evaluation plan (PEP) for public utilities. This was important legislation for the Coast because it directly affects our electric power rates.

PEP is a new regulatory scheme which gives utilities a financial incentive to keep customer rates low. It has been working well, but the Mississippi Supreme Court recently overturned Mississippi Power Company's plan on a technicality. The recent legislation fixed the problem so that we can continue to have the lowest rates in the state.

In closing, I feel that I owe the voters an apology for the botched up special session. All of us in the legislature and the governor's office as well share the responsibility. The failure to fund BEST is a serious step backwards for Mississippi.

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Capitol flags are available to public

For most Mississippians the Fourth of July is a time for backyard barbecues and family gatherings. The holiday, however, means extra work for at least one Washington office, the Flag Distribution Center at the Capitol.

Over the past 40 years the office has provided to the people at least 1.4 million flags that have been flown over the U.S. Capitol. The orders seem to increase for the office particularly around this patriotic time of year.

One of the many services offered by Congressional offices is to work with the Flag Office to help fill requests for the Capitol flags. Lately, I have placed at least 20 to 30 orders for flags from constituents each month.

I do not think we have a disproportionate number of requests for the district. A large number of military personnel reside in South Mississippi. The area is also home to many of this nation's veterans.

South Mississippians believe in our country. We are patriotic and proud of our flag. These days, many people believe the American flag makes a thoughtful and appropriate gift.

Filling the flag request is an easy service for my office to provide, and it is certainly a request that I am happy to oblige. Many times, it is the only thing a constituent asks of my congressional office, other than that it provide good government.

The flags come in two sizes and are made of either nylon or cotton. They cost anywhere from $7.50 to $18.25.

Constituents may send a check payable to the Keeper of Stationery to my office (1429 Longworth House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515) or call my Washington office, (202) 225-5772, for assistance in placing an order.

Citizens can request a special date for the flag to be flown and I will see to it that the request is filled within six to eight weeks of the order.

Dowdy doesn't rule out run for governor's seat

It was noted by several political observers during the 1988 Senate race that Governor Dowdy, a man and a Democrat, was not running for the 1991 gubernatorial race.

But back to his statement following the 1991 election, Dowdy said, "I'm actually not ruling out the possibility of running for governor's seat."

Dowdy says that he really did not seek to become publicly identified with Mabus in that campaign, because "I have always felt that one officeholder can't help another one." However, some had felt back then that Dowdy may have had it in the back of his mind that he would run against Mabus in 1991.

Black voters have had a loyalty to Dowdy going back to his upset win in the Fourth Congressional race in 1981 when he became the first major white candidate in Mississippi to endorse the extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Law.

Those ties grew even stronger when Dowdy fulfilled his promise and voted for extension of the Voting Rights, a move that helped turn around several other members of the Mississippi delegation who had traditionally opposed the law.

Reportedly, the Mabus camp has become concerned over the recent rumblings about a possible Dowdy bid for governor. Mainly, the Mabus people worry about Dowdy's strong political appeal to black voters, the same voter base that undergirded Mabus' election in 1987.

Dowdy apparently is taking a reading on the movement of Former Gov. Bill Allain about the state as an indicator that Allain is warming up for a gubernatorial bid next year. Although he would not say so specifically, Dowdy seemed to indicate that if Allain ran, then he would not run.

Meantime, there seemed to be renewed interest among anti-Mabus forces in the possibilities of having a strong Democratic candidate next year to stop Mabus' re-election.

Some Mabus foes also interpret the disastrous special session of the Legislature on funding the governor's "BEST" education program as further evidence of Mabus' vulnerability.

Frank Davis featured at Bookends

BY JANET MCQUEEN
New Orleans chef and television personality Frank Davis will be on hand at Bookends Book Store in Bay St. Louis Saturday, July 7 from 2 until 4 p.m. to autograph copies of his new cookbook, "Naturally N'Awlins".

The book is written in the conversational tone which has reinforced Davis' popularity with television and radio audiences for more than 15 years. Davis is resident chef and outdoors director for WWL-TV in New Orleans and hosts a two-hour cooking show each week. Step-by-step directions to preparing dishes such as "N'Awlins Blueberry Cream Cheese Crumble", "Mudbugs and Macaroni", "New Orleans Cheepie Chicken" and "Cajun Baked Eggs" are offered, along with more than 150 other New Orleans style recipes.

He is the author of "The Frank Davis Seafood Notebook" and "The Frank Davis Fishing Guide to Lake Pontchartrain and Lake Borgne".

Selections for tasting will be available Saturday during the book signing session. Diamond-head resident Terry Thompson, cookbook author, chef and instructor will prepare the appetizers.

Among the recipes to be prepared is:

NEW ORLEANS SHRIMP PATE' SUPREME

The next time you throw a party (or you're invited to one), make this dish and serve it as the primary appetizer. But let me warn you... you'd better make a lot of it! This stuff is so good it practically disappears! 1 stick real butter (not margarine)

1/2 cup finely chopped shallots

1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1/4 cup finely chopped bell pepper

1 lb. peeled shrimp (40-50 count)

1 tsp. sweet basil
1/2 tsp. Italian seasoning

2 tsp. paprika
1/2 cup shrimp stock

(reduced from heads/shells)

1 large pkg. Philadelphia cream cheese

1 large carton small-curd cottage cheese

1 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. black pepper

1/4 tsp. cayenne pepper
1/4 cup finely chopped parsley

First, take a 12-inch skillet, melt the butter to bubbling, and stir-fry the chopped shallots, celery, and bell pepper until tender. Then toss in the shrimp and saute them over medium heat until they turn pink and some of the shrimp juices begin to render out (this is going to take about 4 minutes).

Just before the shrimp are cooked, add the basil, Italian seasoning and paprika, and stir it into the mixture well. Also pour in the 1/2 cup of shrimp stock and gently simmer until everything is blended.

Next, using a food processor with the cutting blade, run the shrimp mixture through on "pulse touch" until the shrimp are "just shredded." Do not overchop! And be sure to keep 6 or 8 large shrimp for decoration on top of the pate.

At this point, add the shredded mixture to a bowl and fold it into the large package of Philadelphia cream cheese. Then put the cottage cheese into the food processor and blend it until it turns creamy (about a minute or two).

Now add the creamed cottage cheese, the salt, and the pepper to the shrimp mix and stir until all the ingredients are consistent. Then sprinkle the top lightly with the finely chopped parsley and place the whole shrimp you saved on top to garnish.

Finally, chill the pate in the refrigerator for at least 4 hours to allow it to "set up." Then serve it cold with crackers, chips, or fresh vegetable sticks.

Suggestion: To serve hot as a fondue, add 1 half pint of heavy cream (whipping cream) to the mix and heat till bubbly in a chafing dish. Serve with nacho chips or croutons.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

There's nothing wrong with the traditional old-fashioned potato salad that grandma and her grandma before her, and so on, used to make by the gallons in the good old summertime for picnics, covered dish suppers, buffet suppers, backyard barbecues, and what have you.

But, it's fun to stray from the well-worn paths of cooking ways, don't you think? I, for one, seldom use mayonnaise in my potato salads, partly because I like other versions better, but mainly because neither my two sons nor my six grandsons can abide mayonnaise on anything!

So, we enjoy our potato salad in the French countryside fashion, splashed liberally with olive oil and white wine and vinegar, and accented with green onions and parsley and other seasonings, and served at room temperature in place of the more commonly made potato salad made with mayonnaise (preferably homemade) and hard-boiled eggs and such and served cold.

I also enjoy potato salad at times served hot or warm, with bacon and onion accents. A friend of mine adds chopped apple to her potato salads, and another insists upon slivers of ham or pepperoni or salami in her potato salad—that's what makes the gastronomic world go 'round!

Here's our family favorite: POTATO SALAD FRANCAISE

2 lbs. small, new red potatoes
1/2 cup finely-chopped green onions
1 clove garlic, minced
4 Tbsp. finely chopped fresh parsley
1 Tbsp. fresh tarragon (or 1/2 Tbsp. dried tarragon)
1/4 cup dry white wine

3 Tbsp. olive oil
Dashes of pepper, cayenne, salt

Splash (1 tsp. or a bit more) vinegar

Bring the potatoes, unpeeled, to a boil and cook until barely, barely tender (don't overcook; mushy potato salad is an abomination). Remove from the fire and drain.

As soon as you can comfortably handle them, peel and cut into thin slices and place in a bowl. Add the other ingredients, and toss well together. Garnish with lettuce and sprigs of parsley. I usually add whole or sliced ripe olives, sometimes green olives as well, to this salad.

At other times I add bits of whatever I come across first when I open the fridge, such as strips of pimiento, perhaps some tiny green peas, and so on. I seldom make this salad the same way twice in a row!

At times, I substitute dill for the tarragon. At other times I add thin sliced zucchini or chopped cucumber just for variety, and because I have a bit on hand that's not quite enough to use in some other dish. (Six to eight servings).

You may use other potatoes than the little new ones, of course, but I prefer the "bitzies" for this salad. Adjust the ingredients according to your taste, and if you want to add chopped yellow or white onions for "stronger" taste, do so, but, this is the true potato salad of the countryside of France.

BACK TO NATURE

By Lydia Schultz

Looking for birds during summer's heat? Try water!

special to the Echo
LYDIA SCHULTZ
It is a dreadful summer everywhere. Stifling, it is as scarce as hens'
I've spent all winter
during summer and it let me down. It's just as I thought it would my negativity blossoms when it comes to the weather in summers.
I don't like a picture of a bird like this. But I put out some of the bird. "How and they are there is always a devoted to water.
The first thing I a first-time buyer of birds is, "Do you have a bird?"
The next pearl of knowledge I drop, wildlife has an infinite finding natural during periods of drought they do finding water think about it. We haven't had water, water where lately. So where birds and critters go to drink?
It is not only essential for to drink, they need it for maintenance of their feathers.

There are several things birds do to care for themselves. Dust baths are something we have all seen them doing joyfully. They sun bathe. Yes. Haven't you seen them out in the yard, wings spread, eyes half closed, soaking in the rays? I'm serious.

This next one may throw you even more than the last one. They lay in a mound of ants and let the ants crawl all over them. No one really knows, to date, what is going on with "anting." Is it skin or feather care? There are a number of theories we'll save for another column.

But the most common concern for us with this writing is the water. The bird bath.
Not only do the common "backyard birds" gather around splashing and asplashing, but birds that will never come to a feeder will, indeed, visit that well-kept bird bath.

After learning this a number of years ago, I hooked my soul for a fountain to get the sound of water in my yard. I paid for months and finally got it home and running.

"My old man," as I call the nautical statue, has attracted my most exciting avian.
Spring is the most productive time. A Summer Tanager once spent a great deal of time around it. An Eastern Kingbird came to check it out the once and ended up taking seven flying dives into the swimming pool! But remember it was my fountain's sound that first attracted the bird.

My favorite was four Prothonotary Warblers all at the same time bouncing all around the fountain.

A mister kept running on especially dry days is like a miniature water sprinkler for birds. It sits in the bird bath.
The bushes around it look like they are growing birds when it's running. There is also a dripper that will keep fresh water supplied to a well-used water source.

Little bird baths all around the yard, on the ground, tucked under bushes, attract every species imaginable.
Some birds like the secluded places. All are well-used.

Hummingbirds, too, need the water. They will actually fly into the mist several times, then go to a perch to preen.

So, you can make this as simple as a garbage can lid turned upside down or you can make it as complex as a recirculating fountain. The mist and drips are "moderately" difficult.

Whatever you choose is fine. Just keep it cool, clean, fresh, and available.

July is the month that we really anticipate an increase in Hummingbirds. I've already had two starting June 19 and was very shocked at the early arrivals. So, get your feeders clean and ready.
Remember to clean them at least every week if not more in this heat.

Economics in Eastern Europe

Local graduate student hears theories on conversion to free market system

BY JEFFREY SHIMIZU AND TRACI BONNEY

A group of about 30 professors and graduate students from Texas A&M University recently had an opportunity to observe firsthand the economic effects of the changes taking place in Eastern Europe.

Among them was Robert Maness, son of Clermont Harbor resident Jim Maness. Robert and the other United States visitors attended The Fourth Friedrich A. Von Hayek Symposium on Knowledge, Evolution and Competition in Bleibach, Germany.

Maness attended the symposium on a fellowship from Texas A&M University's Center for Education and Research in Free Enterprise. He won the fellowship based on his academic achievements and his specialization in economics.

The conference, which consisted of presentations and discussions of papers, mainly dealt with the conversion of economies in Eastern European countries to the free market system.

The conference is named for Friedrich Von Hayek, a prominent political philosopher who in the 1930's debated with leading socialists that socialism could not survive. He thought there was no way that a central government could make all of the decisions necessary to regulate a market.

Maness said, "In a free market all the producer has to know are the prices of the inputs (materials needed to manufacture goods) and how much he can sell the goods for, but in a socialist system the government must set all of the prices in advance and that is just too much information to process."

Maness said European professors are held in high esteem by their graduate students and fellow countrymen in general. He remarked that a professor is more respected than a doctor.

He thought he gained the most by just being given the chance to talk with the Eastern European economists, "because they have taught economics, and the way that they (easterners) are taught is a lot different than the way people in the west are taught economics."

A main concern, Maness said, is "the way that they are going to teach their young economists."

Another area of concern is the fate of state-run institutions in eastern bloc countries. Maness said the countries

Maness said that West Germany is very concerned with place.

Countries like East Germany, Hungary and Poland, which had a free-market economy before World War II, will be more likely to survive the coming changes than countries like Russia, which have no such tradition to revive, Maness said.

He explained that some of the people living in former free-market countries remember what the economies were like, which will help them.

Maness, a graduate of Louisiana State University with a bachelor of science degree in economics, is currently completing work on his doctoral degree with a specialization in industrial organization. He will finish his doctorate in one or two years and plans on staying in education when he finishes.

"Countries like East Germany, Hungary and Poland, which had a free-market economy before World War II, will be more likely to survive the coming changes than countries like Russia, which have no such tradition to revive"— Maness are talking about giving the institutions away, but can't decide who should receive them.

"They are worried about foreigners coming in and buying them," Maness said. "They shouldn't worry because if the markets work, the institutions will end up in the right hands. The people who value them the most will buy them."

the way the conversion of East German currency on July 1 will affect the West German economy. West German economists question whether the country can control inflation since there will be many more people spending West German marks.

Conference participants also discussed whether other Eastern European countries can survive the changes taking

Attends premiere

Bay St. Louis resident Joan Wilkinson attended the world premiere of the movie "Dick Tracey" June 14 in Orlando, Fla. at MGM studios. Wilkinson's daughter, Cheri Minns of Studio City, Calif., was makeup artist for Warren Beatty and Madonna. Minns is currently in Banbury, England, where she is makeup artist for Ted Danson and Steve Guttenberg for the film "Three Men and A Little Lady". ## Award-winning story by Ray Stieffel published in regional sailing magazine

RAY STIEFFEL

Ray Stieffel of Bay St. Louis was honored in the Gulf Coast Writers' Association Literary Contest, winning first place in the nonfiction category for his story "Waterspout".

He won second honorable mention in the same category for "The Race." His fiction entry, "Mrs. Hermand's Chicken," won third place.

Stieffel has been writing as a hobby for a number of years but this is the first time he has entered the literary contest, which attracted more than 330 entries.

"Waterspout" was published in the Logbook of Mid-Gulf Sailing Magazine June 1990 edition. The story tells of his adventure on his 20-foot centerboard sloop with low freeboard with his wife's aunt and cousin in the Bay of St. Louis.

It describes their trials when the boat was overturned by the winds from a waterspout and the eventual rescue of the passengers and the boat.

Ray and his wife, Ann, and several of their children are avid sailors in Bay St. Louis.

Wolfe named Administrator of Year

Philip R. Wolfe, administrator of Hancock Medical Center, has been recently recognized as the Young Administrator of the Year for the State of Mississippi.

The award was made at the annual meeting of the Mississippi affiliates of the American College of Healthcare Executives in Biloxi.

The honor is awarded to a young administrator who has made the greatest contribution to healthcare to his community through his influence and leadership.

"The award is one of the greatest honors I have received," said Wolfe. "I think it reflects the many contributions made by the community, the medical staff, the board of trustees and the employees."

"These groups, working together, have created a successful hospital. I wish this award could go to everyone who made it possible," he said.

The award is presented annually to a recipient younger than 40, who has been in healthcare in Mississippi for at least three years.

EFFECTIVE DATES: I understand that my membership is effective August 1, 1990 through July 31, 1991.

CEHS's Homrig spends summer in Japan in exchange program

Coast Episcopal High School announced the selection of Jeff Homrig as the recipient of one of two scholarships from the State of Mississippi in the 1990 Japan-U.S. Senate Scholarship Program.

Homrig, son of Lt. Col. and Mrs. David Homrig of Biloxi, was selected for this honor after a vigorous and extensive evaluation process.

His application was first screened by a selection committee in Washington, D.C. Then, as a semi-finalist, he was interviewed by a panel of business and educational leaders from across the state.

This program, funded by the government of Japan since 1981, provides full scholarships to send 100 American exchange students to Japan for six weeks in the summer.

Each year a high school may nominate one junior, with a grade point average of 3.2 or better to be considered as a candidate for this honor. The student must demonstrate leadership potential through extra-curricular activities, work experience, and community involvement and must also demonstrate an ability to adapt to an unfamiliar environment.

Homrig, who will be a senior in the fall, is a member of the National Honor Society, Mu Alpha Theta and the German Club. He served as vice-president of the junior class and lettered in football and baseball for Coast Episcopal.

Last summer, Homrig traveled to the Soviet Union as one of ten student ambassadors from the State of Mississippi in the People to People Youth Science Exchange.

Pearl River tuition reflects small increase

The Pearl River Community College Board of Trustees voted to increase its tuition by $25 per semester. The increase, which is less than 10 percent, will put students this fall paying $325 per semester instead of $300.

Pearl River's tuition will remain around the third lowest of all educational institutions in the state.

According to business manager Ron Holmes, the increase is based largely on the amount of funding the college will lose.

Other fee changes include the establishment of a $25 laboratory fee per semester to the students in the academic nursing program and a $10 per semester increase in the bus fee.

Students can ride a bus daily from points within the college's six-county supporting district for $110 per semester.

In other action the PRC board:

—Reviewed activity underway through the Department of Research Administration with the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Funding has been requested with the Institute on Humanities in the Work Place in the amount of $536,395 and for the Single Parent/Homemaker program in the amount of $107,324.

—Approved a schedule to consistently distribute financial aid funds and refunds on a definite disbursement schedule.

—Heard a report from Donna Wilson, executive director of the PRC Development Foundation, stating more than $25,000 was raised at the Extravaganza, pushing the yearly total to $137,000.

—Approved a plan for the design of the Allied Health Center in Hattiesburg to be designed for electric and gas facilities.

—Heard a report from architect Mike Landry regarding the Dental Technology program and a road planned for the Allied Health Center.

—Approved lease agreement, as presented by attorney Martin Smith for 22,887 square feet of a building in Picayune from the Pearl River County Board of Supervisors for use as a retraining center for workers dismissed as the result of the closing of the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant.

Norton earns Ph.D. in physics

Guy Norton, a research physicist at Naval Oceanographic and Atmospheric Research Laboratory, has earned a doctorate degree in classical physics at Tulane University.

He began working toward his Ph.D., which took four years to complete, while completing his master's degree program in physics at the University of New Orleans. Norton originally began his research career as an oceanographer, but found he enjoyed physics more and had more aptitude for it.

Norton said he likes to understand the physical processes that happen in nature in an abstract plane.

He moved to the Bay St. Louis area in 1981 after serving as an army officer four years. He accepted a position as a geophysicist for the United States Naval Oceanographic office, but transferred to the acoustics division.

Norton has written and co-authored seven articles which have been published in various scientific journals, including The Journal of Computational Mathematics.
